

This course is designed to inspire and equip all believers to engage in dynamic, effective prayer ministry through the practical and responsible application of the spiritual gifts. The material covered includes a vision for intercession, a theology for prayer ministry, guidelines for a healthy, helpful application of the spiritual gifts and, above all, practical training for deeper engagement with God and others through prayer. The resource manual used has been translated into multiple languages and used by churches internationally for the development of prayer ministry teams within the context of the local church.

PRAYER MINISTRY TRAINING

"Facilitate authentic and life-changing encounters with Jesus"

Nikki White writes for MULTIPLY (the global mission agency for the Mennonite Brethren denomination), gathering and publishing stories from all over the world, with a focus on prayer mobilization. She is involved in the training of short- and long-term global workers in the areas of prayer ministry and intercession and teaches seminars for both local and global churches. She is certified with Prepare/Enrich Canada™ to coach individuals and couples through a rich process of self-discovery and personal growth (Whitestone Identity Coaching), and is the author of Identity in Exodus, winner of the 2019 Braun book award for non-fiction. She and her husband, children and grandchildren live in Vancouver, BC.

After completing undergraduate studies in Fine Arts in Mexico, Nikki served on staff with Surrey Vineyard, then as a worship director/consultant for various churches in the BC Lower Mainland. She holds a master's degree in biblical studies from MBBS (Trinity Western University), and she and her family attend North Langley Community (MB) Church, where she oversees curriculum development and training for prayer ministry teams. As a self-proclaimed "Contextual Charismatic", Nikki's focus is the practical and responsible application of the spiritual gifts in ministry; as an artist, author and musician, her passion is to facilitate authentic and life-changing encounters with Jesus Christ.

"Like many Christians of my generation, I was both shaped by - and damaged by - the early charismatic renewal movement of the 90's. Although this genuine move of the Holy Spirit left myself and many others deeply touched and refreshed in our love for Jesus, I also experienced the extremism that was prevalent at the time; an aura of mystical, spiritual exclusivity and an unhealthy obsession with the subjective. Rather than discard all, I resolved to continue to help others experience intimacy with God and to teach others to do the same, but to do so ways that were accessible, pragmatic and inclusive, building bridges across generational, denominational and cultural barriers." – Nikki White
